

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL—WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1859.

Daily Appeal.

MRS. GENERAL SCOTT'S VERSES TO HER HUSBAND.

The Paris correspondent of the London Newspaper, writing on the 16th of October, says:

"Your readers are doubtless all aware of the fact that Lieutenant General Scott, Commander-in-Chief of the British Army, has arrived at the port of Buchanan to San Juan, in settle accounts between General Harvey and himself. He is accompanied by his wife, Lady Douglas, his Majesty's representative in British Columbia."

General Scott is a man of great principle and energy, and it is to be hoped that his administration is more positive in the law, at least in some parts of his new command, than the one he left behind him in the name of the United States. Governor Douglas, his Majesty's representative in the British Columbia colonies,

All Americans look upon General

Scott as a man of great ability, and hope that he may succeed in carrying out his instructions in such a manner that will be satisfactory to both parties. A quarrel over the same language, and a struggle between two nations, are not the best modes of civilization and progress.

A few evenings since, I was with a number of my friends at a dinner given in honor of General Scott. This lady has for many years resided in Paris. During the course of the evening, she recited a portion of the Mme. Scott's album following lines addressed by her to her husband, in the name of the Queen of England, in the course of their strange and various, and begged permission to send them to you—in fact, I have no doubt that General Scott will allow me to explain that General Scott left New York on the 1st of November.

"I am now in the West. We have no news yet. We will receive no additional news, if only from you, and the few friends present the evening in question are the only ones who are available."

"On Star of the West" those who have been to the West say:

"The war is over. The South is defeated. The Union is safe. The Confederacy is dead."

"We have no news of battle," goes on

"but we have news of peace, and of our friends' return."

"We have no news of the West,"

"but we have news of the Confederacy."

"We have no news of the Confederacy."
